

Statement on Data Center Business in China

October 17, 2025 at 10:30 AM EDT

The Cyberspace Administration of China's 2023 decision has impacted Micron's data center business in China. Micron values its customers in China, and we continue to provide our portfolio of industry-leading DRAM and NAND products to our customers, while respecting and abiding by applicable laws and regulations everywhere we do business. Micron's sales and business infrastructure, including in China, is consistent with the scale of the business that Micron conducts in each region. We have a strong operating and customer presence in China, and China remains an important market for Micron and the semiconductor industry in general. Our assembly and test manufacturing site in Xi'an is an important part of Micron's global operations. China is also home to Micron customer labs in Shanghai, Beijing, and Shenzhen, where we collaborate with customers to help design, optimize, and validate memory systems and solutions. We are committed to continuing to support the growth and innovation of our customers.